

Interpretive Comments on the Guidelines for Pastors' Salaries and Benefits
2017-2018
(Adapted for CMC from MC-USA)

I. Pastoral Salary Base and Unit Values

The base and unit values are adjusted on a yearly basis as needed. The base assumes a high school education only. Credit for post-high school education is included in the salary units for education (II.B).

II. Unit Value for Salary Adjustment

- A. Experience. One unit is given for each accumulating year (or full-time equivalent) of pastoral experience, up to a maximum of 30 years. One unit should be credited for each of the first 20 years of pastoral experience and one-half unit per year for years 21-30 for a maximum of 25 units.

In some situations, particularly where ministry is a second career or where other church related years of experience have helped to prepare the person for pastoral ministry, it might be appropriate to award some units for experience other than ministry. When that is done, the maximum should be no more than one unit for each two years (or full-time equivalent) of relevant experience. For new pastors, it would also be appropriate to give one year of experience for each year of full-time pastoral education.

- B. Education. Education units are awarded according to the table based on degree completion — not on years of study. The unit credit for S/CPE is for four full units of credit, not for the single unit but year-long extended unit of S/CPE. Graduate degrees other than seminary, while valuable for general preparation, are not designed for pastoral ministry preparation and should be granted only one unit per degree. The maximum units for all accumulated education are eight.

- C. Responsibility. The premise is that different levels of complexity, various levels of intensity, and higher levels of risk in ministerial leadership ought to be reflected in the salary scales. These are kept at a minimum in the church compared to other vocations in our society. Where these guidelines might result in an equal or higher salary for an associate as compared to a lead pastor in that congregation, the salary committee may need to make adjustments that reflect the stated roles and responsibility.

For purposes of these guidelines, we consider a youth minister to be an associate pastor. This year Church Planter was combined with Solo Pastor / Co-pastor rather than a separate category.

- D. Geography. Across the country there is considerable spread in the cost of living, particularly related to housing costs. These geographical units are not updated each year because the data source has become very expensive. Local data should be taken into consideration to adjust geographical units as needed. You should also consider the median household income of your congregation. Checking with your local Chamber of Commerce or a similar organization will help inform your congregational decisions.

- E. Optional other units. We recognize that the specific unit values identified on the worksheet may not meet the unique circumstances of every congregation. In some cases, where the cost of living and/or housing is particularly high, a congregation may want to add additional units. There may also be other local considerations that would suggest additional units.

III. Self-Employment Tax Adjustment

We support pastors' participation in the Social Security system to provide long-term benefits for retirement, disability, survivor's benefits in case of an untimely death, and Medicare benefits in retirement years.

Pastors are considered self-employed for purposes of figuring social security taxes, meaning that they are responsible to pay the self-employment tax (both the employee's and the employer's portion of social security, minus a somewhat discounted rate - approximately 2 percentage points) of the 15.3 percent total tax rate.

This additional cost to the pastor for social security could be considered a trade-off for the unique housing deduction which pastors have on income tax (see section VII. A. "Housing Allowance"). However, many times, half of the self-employment tax still exceeds any special income tax deductions for housing which the pastor may receive.

Therefore, consideration should be given to granting the pastor additional income to cover the amount normally paid by the employer (7.65 percent of income or one-half of the usual rate of 15.3 percent). Any payment to the pastor to assist in payment of the self-employment tax becomes additional salary and must be included as taxable income on the W2 form for IRS.

IV. Housing Adjustments

- A. Parsonage adjustment. When the congregation provides housing through a parsonage, the value of such housing should be figured at a fair market value in the community and subtracted from the overall salary. This amount should be deducted from Total Salary before Housing Adjustments (line 12). Another guide for determining this parsonage adjustment is that it should not exceed 25 percent of line 12. The value of the housing is considered a taxable benefit.
- B. Housing equity fund. If the fair market value of housing is deducted from salary because of a parsonage, then a housing equity fund may be established for the minister. This fund helps to offset the loss to the minister of the amount which normally would go to pay on the principal of the mortgage, the gain in value which may come to the property due to inflation and the gain which may be realized through improvements using the minister's own labor. The recommended amount to be placed annually in an account is five percent of line 12 or two percent of the assessed parsonage value. It is recommended that these funds be deposited in a separate account such as an Everence Praxis Mutual Fund or another type of investment of local choice. This is taxable income in the year the minister receives and controls these funds as is the interest or dividends earned.

V. Benefits

- A. Medical Health Plan. We suggest that the church provide a family health insurance plan for the pastor and the pastor's family. Such plans can be purchased through the Affordable Health Care Act or through private brokers. Alternative plans include Christian health care sharing plans such as Samaritan Ministries, Christian Care Ministry (or MediShare), Guidestone, Liberty Healthshare, Christian Healthcare Ministries, The Health Co-OP, and Medical Cost Sharing. In many Mennonite communities a medical sharing plan is available and administered locally for members of the local Anabaptist church members.

Churches should also look into setting up and contributing to a Health Savings Account (HSA) or a Flexible Savings Account (FSA) to help manage out of pocket expenses for pastors. HSA and FSA contributions can be made with pre-tax income and can reduce income tax. For information on HSA's, contact Everence or your current health insurance provider.

- B. Retirement Fund. We recommend that ministers participate in the Social Security system. However, Social Security was not designed to provide all the income needed for retirement. So we encourage the congregation to contribute to a retirement plan for the pastor. One idea to consider is to set aside a percentage of the pastor's salary (perhaps 3%, with another 3% if matched by the pastor, resulting in a total of 9%) toward a retirement account set up with Mennonite Retirement Trust (MRT). MRT is managed by Everence, with whom CMC maintains an official relationship. Advantages to using MRT for a retirement account include socially responsible investing and, when reporting gross income for federal income tax purposes, ministers can exclude a portion of their income designated by MRC as a "housing allowance" under Section 107 of the Internal Revenue Code.

We encourage the pastor to make personal investments/savings toward retirement. Contributions from both the employer and pastor can be up to 100 percent of taxable compensation or $53,000, whichever is lower. Keep in mind that contributions to retirement plans cannot exceed the pastor's income minus the amount designated as housing allowance. We encourage you to consult with a financial advisor, tax consultant, or lawyer.

- C. Life and Disability Insurance. The congregation may provide some other life insurance and/or disability insurance for the pastor. Congregations are encouraged to consider Short Term Disability for their staff as well.
- D. Continuing Education and Spiritual Direction/Retreats. The congregation should provide funds for pastoral growth and continuing education such as Annual Conference and Pastors Conference. We are suggesting a range from $600 - $1000 per year. In addition, one to two weeks' annual study leave time should be provided. These funds may accumulate over three years within the congregation being served to permit participation in something like as a seminary interterm or summer school. Congregations may also encourage pastors to seek out opportunities for spiritual direction and/or retreats. A list of pastoral retreats, some of them at little or no cost to the pastor, are found on the CMC website at <http://cmcrosedale.org/ministries/retreats/>
- E. Other Benefits. Congregations may want to contribute to an employee's Health Savings Account (HSA). This can help offset deductible expenses for the pastors/staff. Other special benefits can be recorded on line 21.

VI. Expense Allowances

- A. Auto Expense. Auto expense for church related travel should be reimbursed at 54.5 cents per mile which is the 2018 level of allowance by IRS. This should be paid monthly based upon an itemized record of miles actually driven and reported by the pastor. The rate should be updated each year on January 1 to the current IRS rate or at any other time that IRS adjusts the rate.
- B. Conference Expense. Attendance at Pastors' Conference and Annual Conference as well as area ministers' meetings is part of the pastor's professional responsibility. It is strongly recommended that the congregation pay for registration, travel, lodging, and food costs for the pastor. Sometimes pastoral families vacation in connection with conference attendance. In such cases, it is recommended that the congregation reimburse the round trip costs of the least expensive mode of transportation to get the pastor to the conference, realizing this may be flying, renting a car or paying mileage on a personal car. The costs and the method for the trip should be agreed upon prior to the trip.
- C. Professional Expenses. Dues of professional associations and costs incurred on behalf of the congregation such as church-related lunch meetings or visits should be reimbursed.
- D. Other Expenses. Moving arrangements and expenses are negotiable between the pastor and the congregation. It is common practice that the receiving congregation assumes the basic costs of moving, such as payment for a rental truck and fuel. Such negotiations should be part of the offer to the pastoral candidate prior to the candidate accepting the invitation.
